EQUITY FRAMEWORK AS IDENTIFIED BY THE IBR PROGRAM

EQUITY AS DEFINED BY THE IBR PROGRAM

PROCESS EQUITY means that the program prioritizes access, influence, and decision-making power for historically and presently disenfranchised communities throughout the program in establishing objectives, design, implementation, and evaluation of success.

OUTCOME EQUITY is the result of successful Process Equity and is demonstrated by tangible transportation and economic benefits for equity priority communities.

Equity priority communities are defined as those who experience and/or have experienced discrimination and exclusion based on identity or status, such as:

- BIPOC (Black, Indigenous, and People of Color)
- People with disabilities
- Communities with limited English proficiency (LEP)
- Persons with lower income

- Houseless individuals and families
- Immigrants and refugees
- Young people
- Older adults

Together, Process Equity and Outcome Equity contribute to addressing the impacts of and removing long standing injustices experienced by these communities.

WHAT IS INEQUITY IN PLANNING & URBAN DESIGN?

When architects think about equitable design, we first think about unequal access to land and housing among historically disenfranchised communities and disadvantaged populations.

US researchers have found that the majority Black neighborhoods that suffered from disinvestment due to the practice of "redlining" in the first half of the 20th century have fewer trees and green spaces today and, thus, hotter summer temperatures.

Gender inequality can also be exacerbated by characteristics of the physical environment. The World Bank's Handbook for Gender-Inclusive Urban Planning and Design found that, across the world, women were 15% less likely to use public space. Among the contributing factors it includes poor sight-lines, a lack of amenities such as play facilities, and overcrowded transit.

Portland-area Japanese Americans were evacuated to hastily constructed temporary living quarters in the Pacific International Livestock Exposition building in north Portland, renamed the North Portland Assembly Center.

INDIGENOUS PEOPLES - HISTORICAL CONTEXT

• IBR is consulting and coordinating with 10 federally recognized tribal governments, four of which have court adjudicated treaty rights on the Columbia River. This process is a governmentto-government process established through federal and state law, separate from public engagement efforts.

Indigenous peoples have lived in and traveled to what is now the Portland-Vancouver region since time immemorial, including in the immediate vicinity of the current Interstate Bridge.

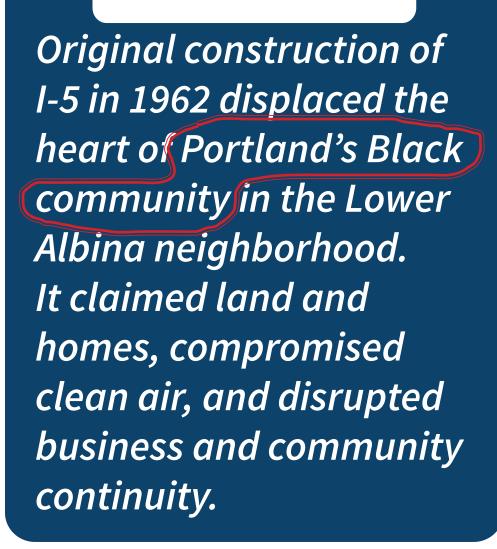

This area along the Columbia River remains significant to Indigenous communities today.

White settlement disrupted tribal communities in the early 19th Century, and the U.S. government removed most Indigenous peoples to reservations in the 1850s.

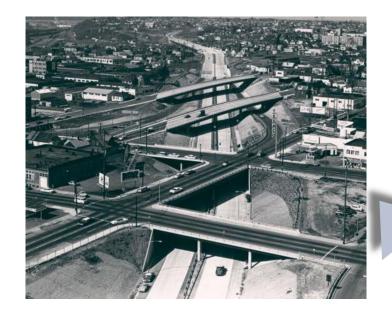

CONSTRUCTION OF I-5

The Lower Albina

neighborhood was a vibrant center of the Black community.

The original construction of I-5 and subsequent urban renewal projects demolished its homes and businesses, choked the neighborhood with vehicle traffic, fractured the community and forced residents to relocate across the Portland metro area.

WHAT IS EQUITY IN PLANNING & URBAN DESIGN?

- Equity metrics need to be definable, impactful, measurable, accountable, and at the front end of the analysis, not the back end.
- Even if greater equity is the primary goal, racial healing can be an important step to reach that goal.
- An equity strategy should outline how to prioritize the needs of people who have been marginalized from the transportation system and to repair past and current harms.

INCORPORATING EQUITY OBJECTIVES INTO DESIGN

MOBILITY & ACCESSIBILITY

Improve mobility, accessibility, and connectivity, especially for lower income travelers, people with disabilities, and historically underserved communities who experience transportation barriers.

PHYSICAL DESIGN

Integrate equity, area history, and culture into the physical design elements of the program, including bridge aesthetics, artwork, amenities, and impacts on adjacent land uses.

COMMUNITY BENEFITS

Work with local agency partners to find opportunities for and implement local community improvements, in addition to required mitigations.

ADDRESSING EQUITY AT EVERY SCALE

EQUITY AT LARGE SCALE

1 A national APTA study found Transit Riders were 40% white and 60% People of Color (they make up 63% and 37% of the population, respectively)

In the Portland Metro Area, 5% of white commuters take transit vs. 12% of black commuters, 8% of Latinx

- 2 How many jobs can people reach in 45-60 minutes on public transit?
- What is the access to non-work destinations on transit, such as health care, groceries, and parks?
 - How do we work with agency partners to improve resources for housing, educational, recreational, health, and fresh food along the IBR?

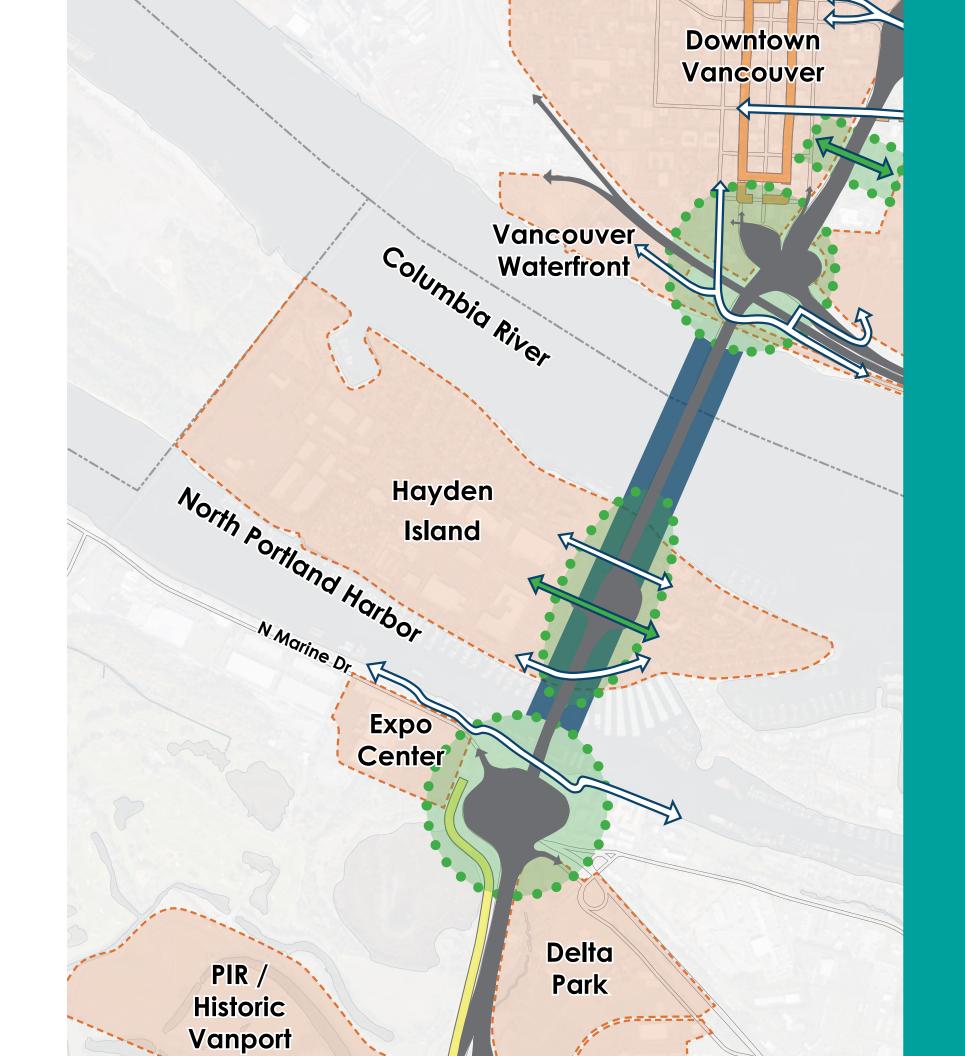

EQUITY AT MEDIUM SCALE

- Expanding the application of quantitative and qualitative data to inform decisions that address the needs and priorities of people who have been marginalized.
- 2 Configuring the travel times, transfers, fares, or other characteristics of transit trips that people make.
- Incorporating Equity assessment at the same time as other evaluations that factor into decision-making.

Quantitative analysis limits attempt to resolve equity, it must be paired with qualitative data.

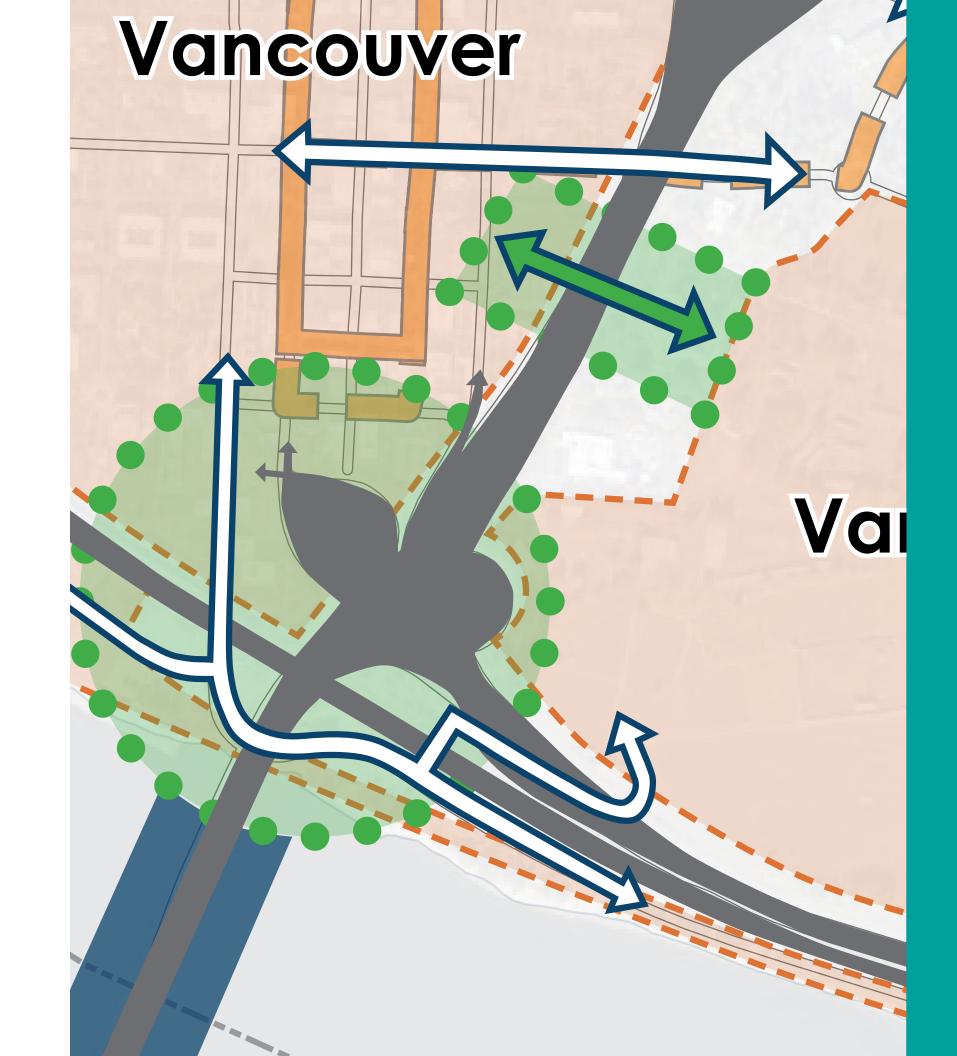

EQUITY AT SMALL SCALE

- 1 Promote safety and security through lighting and clear sight lines.
- 2 Provide as much transparency as possible to enhance visibility.
- Provide ADA accessibility through Universal Design Principles.
- 4 Provide public restrooms and drinking water.
- Apply placemaking principles at ground level through landscaping, streetscaping, and activation where feasible.
- 6 Develop stations as Gateways to the transit system.

NOTHING ABOUT US, WITHOUT US, IS FOR US

We always start with UNDERSTANDING COMMUNITIES as they are.

It informs everything we do.

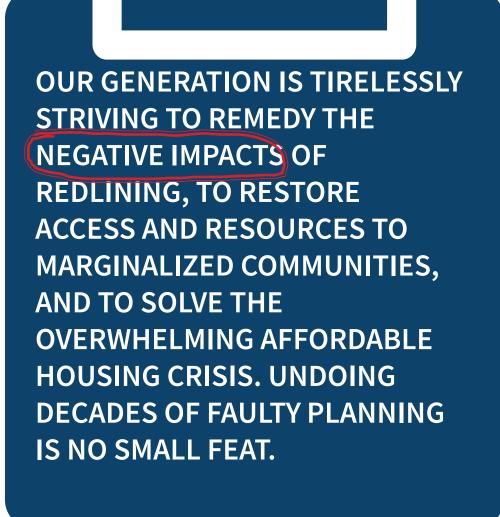

We design the process for maximum and meaningful involvement, particularly of those who are most directly affected by the INEQUITIES.

CONTINUED ITERATIVE LEARNING PROCESS

Creating an iterative process means that those involved need to keep learning and modifying their work.

The design team also needs to include people who experience inequities.

IMPROVING THE TRANSIT ORIENTED DEVELOPMENT (TOD)

CAN THE NEW TOD BE TOC?

"TRANSIT ORIENTED COMMUNITIES"

Instead of infrastructure segregating communities how do we use the transit network to build communities?

Transit infrastructure often stimulates economic development and increases investments within 15 min walk-shed.

Engage stakeholders and partners to encourage mixed-use to create healthy communities, that are equitable for both existing and future tenants?

Could we work with municipalities to increase the supply of affordable housing along IBR?

GOOD DESIGN IS EQUITABLE DESIGN

It means that the design, structure, and motive are clear to the user.

The design feels inviting and welcoming to all.

Delivers a high-quality user experience to all its users regardless of their age, gender identity, race or ability.

The space is enjoyable and comfortable to be in.

An enjoyable product design makes the user happy. The design creates a positive relationship with the user.

The spatial design and characteristics promote safety and security.

UNIVERSAL DESIGN PRINCIPLES

- 1 DESIGN FOR ALL AGES
- DESIGN FOR THE DIFFERENTLY ABLED
- 3 DESIGN TO BE INTUITIVE & USER FRIENDLY
- 4 HOLISTICALLY INTEGRATED INTO THE DESIGN

Universal Design is Equitable Design:

Thoughtful, human-centered design of transit infrastructure elevates the experience of riding transit, and can save both time and money.

DEFENSIVE DESIGN

THE TREND, OF TRYING TO CONTROL BEHAVIOR AND PREVENT CRIME THROUGH ENVIRONMENTAL DESIGN, ISN'T NEW. BUT IT'S CERTAINLY GAINING TRACTION IN CITIES AND TOWNS ALL OVER THE WORLD. WHILE THE INTENTION OF THESE FEATURES IS OFTEN ROOTED IN DURABILITY AND SAFETY, THE EFFECTS CAN BE MORE WIDE-REACHING

EXAMPLE 1

Hunter's Point South Park, Long Island City, NY

EXAMPLE 2

Guangzhou City, Guangdong, China

EXAMPLE 3

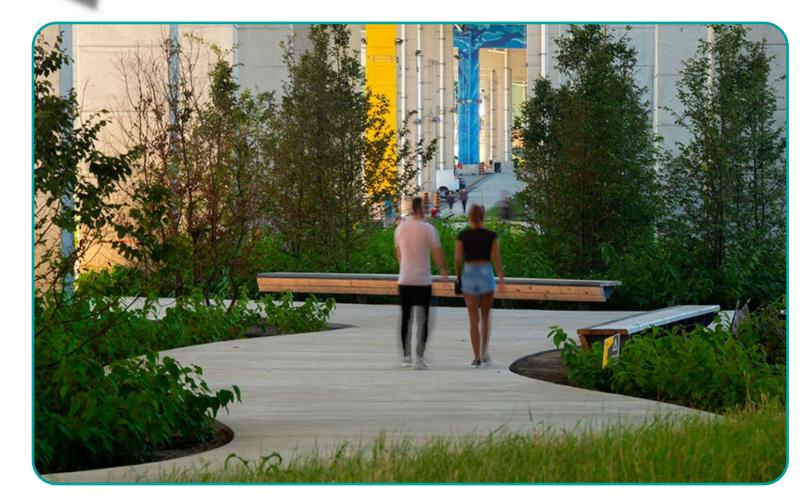

8th & Market SEPTA, Philadelphia, PA

DEFENSIVE DESIGN

Defensive design is usually targeted at people experiencing homelessness, but it negatively impacts the elderly, pregnant women and differently abled people. And its consequences are felt by all.

Defensive design often has the intention of creating more secure spaces which require less maintenance – but in most cases it has the opposite effect.

SUSTAINABLE SECURITY & SAFETY ARE ONLY EVER ACHIEVED BY GOOD URBAN DESIGN

EXAMPLES

Creative design solution for the underbelly of the overpass gives a place a special feeling.

Instead of a utilitarian solution, this raised pedestrian connection feels inviting, safe, and welcoming.

Opportunity to integrate elevated plazas, and green roofs as part of raised platforms, contributing to a sense of place and ownership for the community.

A public gathering place that feels inviting and welcoming to all, and can support different activities.

An opportunity to celebrate local heritage and culture by paying tribute to its rich legacy.
